

VANILLA

GENERAL INFORMATION

Based at 131 Great Titchfield Street, Vanilla is a luxurious but accessible new restaurant and bar that's set to take the capital by storm. Under the inspirational guidance of restaurant director Matthieu Destandau, latterly of Firevault, Vanilla will combine cutting edge design with a superb food and drink offering.

The ultra futuristic fit out boasts an all-white interior and colour-changing LED lighting softened by the warm glow of crystal chandeliers, damask patterns and retro chic furniture. With the addition of crescent-shaped sofas, oval tables and huge mirrors, the effect is out of this world – yet still cosy and intimate.

The food at Vanilla promises to be as spectacular as the surroundings. Chef Marion David has created a mouth-watering selection of Modern European dishes. At lunchtime diners can choose between a full gastronomic menu in the restaurant and a weekly changing set lunch in the bar area. In the evening, a simple light food selection will be available in the bar.

Restaurant:

Bold black walls and mirrors contrast with the delicate white damask prints – an echo from the vibrant bar. Plump banquettes invite you to surrender to the intimate luxury of Vanilla.

Lounge Bar:

Vibrant yet intimate the bar at Vanilla is unique retreat for member. The smooth white resin floor, damask print mirrors and chandeliers reflect a light of subtly changing colours. Delicate drapes surround each table, providing privacy but allowing view into the lively bar.

The Skylight Room:

A dedicated private dining room and meeting space for up to 20 people.

The Meadow Room:

Smaller, dedicated meeting spaces for up to 8 people.
